Treating people fairly

We are committed to the Equality Act 2010 and treating people fairly. To find out more about this law, search 'Equality' on www.gov.uk

If you are an employer

You must fill in this form when an employee cannot get Statutory Sick Pay (SSP), or when an employee's SSP has come or is coming to an end.

The information you give will help the Department for Work and Pensions to decide on an employee's benefit application.

Please complete Parts A, B and C of this form.

If you are an employee

Your employer has given you this form because you cannot get SSP, or because your SSP is coming to an end.

You can find out the reasons why in Part C and what to do next in Part D.

Part A

(Employer to complete)

When you have completed this form, you must give it to the employee.

For more information about SSP go to www.gov.uk/employers-sick-pay

Or you can contact HM Revenue and Customs Employer helpline on 0300 200 3200.

Medical information

Please send this form to your employee with any medical information they have given you which covers a period you cannot pay SSP for.

You can ask your employee to give you medical information as proof they cannot return to work if they are off for more than seven days.

Medical information can be a Statement of Fitness for Work, commonly known as a fit note (sometimes known as sick notes or doctor's notes). A GP or hospital doctor can issue a fit note.

Alternatively, you can use an Allied Health Professional (AHP) report if you, the employer, agree. A physiotherapist, podiatrist or occupational therapist can issue an AHP report.

This medical information should state whether or not the employee is not fit for work or may be fit for work. Return medical information to your employee as they may need it for future benefit applications.

Please tick one of the following boxes

I have enclosed medical information that covers a period I cannot pay SSP

I have not enclosed medical information

Part A: If you are an employer

I declare that the information I have given on this form is correct and complete as far as I know and believe.

I understand that if this employee has been getting SSP, I must continue to pay SSP up to and including the day before the date I have written in Part B of this form.

-----------	--

Part C: Why you cannot get Statutory Sick Pay

(Employer to complete)

You cannot get SSP on or after

DD/MM/YYYY

This is because:

You got Employment and Support Allowance during the last 12 weeks.

Your contract of employment has ended or will be coming to an end.

You became sick after your contract of employment ended.

(Note for employee: Your employer will have to pay you SSP if they ended your contract solely or mainly to avoid paying SSP).

You will soon have been getting SSP for 28 weeks in a row.

Or, you have had SSP for 28 weeks in total, made up of separate times you were sick that were 8 weeks or less apart.

Your average earnings for the 8 weeks before you were sick were less than the Lower Earnings Limit.

You can find out more by searching for rates and thresholds for employers on www.gov.uk

You are expecting a baby soon or you have just had a baby.

Note for employee:

- if you can get Statutory Maternity Pay (SMP), which is money paid by the employer to women for time off work to have their baby, you cannot get SSP during your 39 week maternity pay period
- if you cannot get SMP you may be able to get a benefit payment called Maternity Allowance (MA). If you can get MA, you cannot get SSP.

You have been sick on and off for more than 3 years. Each time you were sick, it was for longer than 4 days and you did not go back to work for more than 8 weeks before you were sick again.

You were away from work because of a trade dispute which started before the first day you were sick.

Note for employee:

- you may get SSP if you were already getting it when the dispute began
- you may get SSP if you can show you were sick and had no direct involvement in the dispute – for example this could be a strike, a walkout or a lockout.

You were sick while in legal custody. Or you are now in legal custody or have been given a prison sentence.

You were working outside the UK on the day you first became sick and your employer did not have to pay employer's class 1 National Insurance contributions on your earnings on that day.

You have not started working for your employer yet.

You did not tell your employer about your sickness.

Part D: Employee - what to do now

If you disagree with your employer's decision not to pay you SSP, ask your employer to explain it to you. If, after talking to your employer, you are still unsure about this decision you can visit www.gov.uk/statutory-sick-pay for more information.

Ask your employer for a reason if you think:

- their decision not to pay you SSP is wrong
- you are not getting the right amount of SSP.

If you still disagree, you can phone HM Revenue & Customs Statutory Payments Dispute team on 0300 056 0630 for advice.

If you are still off work because of an illness or disability you may be able to get money and support:

- to help you get back to work, or
- if you are not able to work in the long term.

You may be able to apply for Universal Credit or get help with housing costs. Your employer will return any medical information they have to you for future benefit applications.

If you have paid enough National Insurance contributions, usually in the last 2 full tax years you may be able to apply for:

- New Style Jobseeker's Allowance
- New Style Employment and Support Allowance.

Please visit www.gov.uk/browse/benefits to find out more.

You could ask your family, or someone you know, if you can use their internet access. You can also get access to the internet in your local jobcentre.

If you need more information on what benefits you might be able to apply for, local welfare advice services, such as Citizens Advice, may be able to help you.

Please note, this form is not an application for benefit.
